The information provided below is made a part of the above RFGA.

- Attachment 4 (Application Instructions), page 5 section 4.8: Sections D-J of the proposal narrative shall not exceed the page limitation for the acceptable combination of activities. See attachment 08 for revised acceptable combinations.
- Attachment 3 (Eligibility Information), page 2, section 3.4: The first bullet should state, "Applicants must be a non-profit organization with 501(c)(3) IRS status. All applicants must submit a copy of the federal IRS certificate verifying 501(c)(3) tax exempt status."
- In Attachment #10 (Sample Table of Contents), please disregard the statement that "Because this arrangement falls under Acceptable Combination #3 the applicant has a 60 page maximum limit for the proposal narrative section." The correct page limits for the proposal narrative section are stated in Attachment #8 (Table of Page Limits and Acceptable Combinations of Activities).
- The acceptable maximum number of pages for proposals submitted under "Acceptable Combination #1" is only 25 pages, while the maximum number of pages allowed for proposals submitted under "Acceptable Combination #2" is much higher than this (35 pages maximum). We recognize the fact that Combination #1 and Combination #2 both involve implementing only two programs. Ideally, the maximum number of pages for these two Combinations should have been the same, because most proposals submitted under either of these two options would likely be of similar size. Had we noticed this error earlier in the process, we would have assigned the same total number of pages (25 maximum) for proposals submitted under either of these two options (Combination #1 or Combination #2). However, because we did not notice this error until recently, the maximum number of pages for all of the Acceptable Combinations (1 through 5) will remain as shown in Attachment #8. This is because many organizations have already started (and are perhaps already finished with) writing their grant proposals and it would be unfair to change the maximum number of pages for organizations submitting proposals under Combination #2 at this late stage of the process.
- In Attachment #8 (Table of Page Limits and Acceptable Combinations of Activities), the last two acceptable combinations are both listed as Acceptable Combination #4. This is a typo. The last acceptable combination shown on this page (which involves implementing 2 EBIs and 2 complementary options) is Acceptable Combination #5.
